To: John Guittar, Deborah Goldberg, Kari Klanderud, Richard Telford, Vigdis Vandvik (ALL AUTHORS)

The Ecological Society of America (the Publisher) is pleased to undertake the publication of your Work entitled: _____

Can trait patterns along gradients predict plant community responses to climate change? (Title)

in: Ecology (JOURNAL)

The Publisher hereby represents that the Work cannot be published unless this form is completed, signed, and returned.

So that the Author(s) and the Publisher may be protected from the consequences of unauthorized use, and in consideration of mutual covenants, we hereby agree as follows:

1. Agreements to Publish:

The Publisher hereby agrees to publish the Work as soon as is practicable.

The Author(s) hereby grants and assigns to the Publisher exclusive rights to publish in all languages, in journal form, in digital or electronic media, including but not limited to electronic databases and CD-ROM, or in any other form, in the United States and in any foreign countries, the above-named Work, which title may not be changed without mutual consent. To the extent that any Supporting Information is submitted to the Journal for online hosting, the Publisher is granted a perpetual, non-exclusive license to host and disseminate this Supporting Information for this purpose.

The Author(s) shall have the right to quote from, reprint, translate, and reproduce the Work in any book or article he/she may later write. If the Author(s) reproduces a portion of the Work in a book or article, the legend or caption of any table or figure that represents data from the Work, in original or modified form, shall cite the Work as the source of those data. In addition, the Author(s) shall have the right to photocopy the Work for his/her own use. If the Author(s) reprints, translates, or photocopies the Work, the original copyright notice, as it appears in the Journal, must be included.

2. Assignment of Copyright:

The Author(s) of the Work, his/her heirs, assigns, administrators, and executors hereby assign to the Publisher the entire copyright for the Work (including any photograph used for the journal cover) except where otherwise provided in this agreement. The copyright consists of any and all rights of whatever kind or nature now or hereafter protected by the copyright laws of the United States and of all foreign countries, in all languages and forms of communication.

3. Author's Warranty:

The Author(s) represents that he/she is the sole proprietor of the Work; that it does not infringe any existing copyright; that it has not heretofore been published; and that to the best of his/her knowledge it contains no libelous or other unlawful matter. The Author(s) will hold harmless the Publisher against any claim, demand, or recovery finally sustained in any proceedings brought against the Publisher by reason of any violation of any proprietary right or copyright, or any unlawful matter contained in the Work.

When previously published data, interpretations, or ideas are included in the Work, the Author shall cite the source (for example, "2009 data are from Reynolds [2012]") and list the reference in the Literature Cited section.

In the event that copyright to a portion of the Work has been assigned previously or that the copyright to the Work has previously been registered with the Library of Congress, the Author will promptly transfer the copyright to the Ecological Society of America.

Authors certify that they have obtained written permission to use any previously published figure, table, or text (of more than 250 words) from another's work that is not in the public domain, covered by fair use provisions of US Copyright law, or published under a Creative Commons license. The publication(s) in which the copyrighted material(s) appear(s) should be listed in the Literature Cited section of the Work. In each figure, illustration, table, or block of text that uses previously copyrighted material, a citation in one of the following forms should appear:

"From Reynolds (2012)" or "Modified from Reynolds (2012)" or "Redrawn from Reynolds (2012)."

4. Editorial Processing:

The Author(s) will be given the opportunity to read and correct proofs of the edited manuscript, but if these are not returned to the Journal Editor by the date specified by the Editor, then production and publication may proceed without Author corrections.

5. Permission and Subsidiary Rights:

If the Publisher receives a request to reprint, translate, or reproduce an excerpt of more than 500 words, or a table or illustration, the Publisher shall make all efforts to act in the interest of the Author(s), as well as its own interests, in handling permission and subsidiary rights.
